A Course in Game Theory.
Main source for the first half of this course. Quite formal.

An Introduction to Game Theory.
Similar content as Osborne & Rubinstein, but less formal.

Rules

Students of Computer Science:

- Master of Science, any year
- Bachelor of Science, ~3rd year

Other students:

- advanced study period (~4th year)

Course prerequisites:

- no required prerequisites
- some familiarity with mathematical notation and theoretical computer science is helpful, familiarity with Python 3 is assumed for the exercises.

- 6 ECTS points
- special lecture in specialization field
Cognitive Technical Systems
- oral exam of about 30 minutes for B.Sc. students
- written or oral exam for M.Sc. students (likely written)

Successful participation (50% of points) prerequisite for exam admission.

Written assignments:

- handed out once a week
- due one week later, before the lecture
- discussed in the next exercise session
- may be solved in groups of two students (2  $\neq$  3)
- 8 points per exercise sheet

Didactic web-based experiments in game theory:

- See <http://gametheory.tau.ac.il/>.
- course number and class password will be sent by email
- experiments conducted intermittently (three to five times throughout course)
- about one week time to complete
- discussed in the next exercise session
- must be solved alone (not in groups)
- 4 points per set of experiments

- points can be earned for “reasonable” solutions to exercises and for participation in web-based experiments.
- at least 50% of points prerequisite for admission to final exam.

What is plagiarism?

- passing off solutions as your own that are not based on your ideas (work of other students, Internet, books, ...)
- <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Plagiarism> is a good intro

Consequence: no admission to the final exam.

- We may (!) be generous on first offense.
- Don't tell us "We did the work together."
- Don't tell us "I did not know this was not allowed."
